

Daily walk sparks call for bag ban

DAILY beach walks have convinced Jill McIver that there is an urgent need to ban plastic bags and introduce a deposit system for cans and bottles.

A president of Mornington Environment Association Ms McIver says she wants to set up a group to specifically lobby Mornington Peninsula Shire and the state government to implement the bans.

"Nearly all states have introduced such measures, as have many countries, with successful programs eliminating plastic from the environment.

"With an ever growing tourism route measures need to be taken to stop the excess rubbish here," she said.

Ms McIver, who has lived on the peninsula for 26 years, said every day when she walked along the foreshore she was confronted with litter, plastic and bottles.

"Rubbish seems to be an increasing problem in our society; everything seems to be able to be thrown away and not easily reusable," she said.

"Our waterways increasingly struggle to cope with excess pollutants. For the future of our children, grandchildren and eco system I believe [the ban] would be a major step in not only reducing landfill, but enhancing our lifestyles and educating our population."

Ms McIver said the Queensland-based Boomerang Bags website is a proactive attempt to reduce litter.

Mornington Environment Association members will meet at Tanti Creek car park, Mills Beach, near the bridge, for their Clean Up Australia Day activities, 9.30-11.30am, Sunday 5 March.

Daily walk sparks call for bag ban

DAILY beach walks have convinced Jill McIver that there is an urgent need to ban plastic bags and introduce a deposit system for cans and bottles.

A president of Mornington Environment Association Ms McIver says she wants to set up a group to specifically lobby Mornington Peninsula Shire and the state government to implement the bans.

"Nearly all states have introduced such measures, as have many countries, with successful programs eliminating plastic from the environment.

"With an ever growing tourism route measures need to be taken to stop the excess rubbish here," she said.

Ms McIver, who has lived on the peninsula for 26 years, said every day when she walked along the foreshore she was confronted with litter, plastic and bottles.

"Rubbish seems to be an increasing problem in our society; everything seems to be able to be thrown away and not easily reusable," she said.

"Our waterways increasingly struggle to cope with excess pollutants. For the future of our children, grandchildren and eco system I believe [the ban] would be a major step in not only reducing landfill, but enhancing our lifestyles and educating our population."

Ms McIver said the Queensland-based Boomerang Bags website is a proactive attempt to reduce litter.

Mornington Environment Association members will meet at Tanti Creek car park, Mills Beach, near the bridge, for their Clean Up Australia Day activities, 9.30-11.30am, Sunday 5 March.